

Caring for a Parent With Dementia or Alzheimer's — A Family Guide

Caring for someone with memory loss requires patience, structure, and safety planning.

Why It Matters

- Dementia and Alzheimer's affect memory, judgment, and safety at home.
- Behavioral changes like wandering or agitation can create risks for both patient and family.
- Proper care and supervision improve quality of life and reduce crises.

Practical Tips

1. Keep a consistent daily routine to reduce confusion.
2. Use memory aids like labels, calendars, and familiar photos.
3. Make the home safe — remove hazards, install door alarms, lock unsafe areas.
4. Stay calm and redirect if agitation or wandering occurs.
5. Engage in gentle, meaningful activities to maintain mental stimulation.

Who Needs This

- Families with seniors showing early memory loss.
- Caregivers managing moderate to advanced dementia at home.
- Families worried about wandering, safety, or night-time agitation.
- Seniors recently diagnosed with Alzheimer's needing structure.

How Narpavi Homecare Can Help

- Specialized MindCare Support caregivers trained in dementia care.
- Safety audits to reduce wandering and fall risk.
- Behavior management and memory engagement activities.
- Family education and regular health monitoring.

 Call 9790016097 for a free consultation and safety assessment.